PROFESSIONAL EXPERIENCE

A Senior Associate with Weber Thompson, Jeff has a total of 17 years experience in all phases of architectural practice. Throughout those years Jeff has focused on residential and senior residential projects for a variety of development clients throughout the Puget sound region. Jeff's project experience is notable for its emphasis on complex entitlement processes. Large scale infill development projects such as Aljaya Thornton Place exemplify Jeff's ability to coordinate between public and private interests and achieve positive outcomes.

Jeff is active in professional and community service, serving as a mentor to young staff through the licensing process as well as the larger profession and community. He is engaged with city planning and land use policy through volunteer work with the Congress of Residential Architects and with Great City. Jeff has advocated for public private development partnerships through an educational seminar with the American Institute of Architects and through an article in the Puget Sound Business Journal.
